THE

PREFACE.

TO find so general a Defect in the Orthography of our Mother Tongue, among Persons otherwise well accomplish'd, is a Disparagement to us among Foreigners, and implies, either the Supineness of the People in applying themselves to obtain this Qualification, or the Want of proper Helps to make the Way easy to it. Where the former of these is the Case, I despair of remedying it any further than the bounds of my small Province extend: If the latter, the World is Witness how zealously I have contributed my Mite to the Public Treasury of English Learning. My small Manual, called, A Guide to the English Tongue, has met with such Success and Encouragement, as far exceed my Expectation, and even my Ambition: Witness the many Editions of it, in the few Years since its first Publication, and divers kind Letters of Approbation from Persons intirely unknown to me, in the several Parts of the Kingdom. However, I have been made sensible by the Representation of divers good Friends, that a further and more general Help was necessary for the Improvement and Completion of a Work so Useful and Beneficial to the greatest part of my Country-men. And tho' I shou'd have been glad to see such a Performance stamp'd with the Authority of some

The P R E F A C E

Some Person of Distinction, both to give it a better Face, and to render it the more acceptable; yet in Defect of that, I have been prevail'd upon to go thro' this Work, and now (such as it is) to present the Public with it.

And I must take the Liberty to tell the Critics, that this Collection has been a Task of more Pains, than they may imagine; the Dictionarys now extant being commonly either irregular, or wanting many necessary Words, or abounding with Words obsolete, or with such Terms of Art, as ought to be handled separately by a Master in those Faculties, wherein they are used. I have been at the Pains also to compare foreign Words with their Originals, in order to fix the right Spelling of them; and in that Search I have discover'd, that our Language over and besides what it owes to the Ancients, is much indebted to the Italian, but more abundantly to the French, which I attribute to the Norman Conquest. However, it's plain, tho' this Borrowing from foreign Languages is, for the most part both an Ornament and Enrichment to our own yet it renders our Spelling the more difficult, inasmuch as many of those Words are now politely sounded after the foreign way, which is very different from that harsh and uncertain Method, whereby the English is pronounced.

I beg leave to insert a few Particulars necessary for the Perusers of this Book, and I'll have done.

1. The Participles in (ed) and (ing) are generally omitted, because they would swell the Book too much, and they are easily formed from the Verb it self; as mark, marked, marking; learn, learned, learning. Only mind, if the Verb have (e) final, the (e) must be left out; as approve, approved, providing.

TO

Mrs. SARAH WILSON,

AND

Mrs. FRANCES WILSON,

Daughters of THOMAS WILSON, late of Stratford-Bow in the County of Middlesex, Esq;

PERMIT me, Ladys, I after the Honour I have had of assisting you in the Arts of Writing and Numbring, to furnish you with one Help more, to further your Improvement in the Art of Spel- ling our Mother Tongue. I have heard the Want of this excellent Accomplishment sorely lamented by the Fair Sex; but indeed, there are Multitudes of our own Sex, to my knowledge, that are every whit as deficient in this Qualification, as the Ladys; and therefore I see no Reason to lay the Fault too heavy on that side, tho' the censorious World be apt to do it. But here I have provided a sufficient Remedy, I hope, for this Defect in both Sexes, and dare very much encourage my self, that your Acceptance of this Work in the first place, will stir up many, both to the Approbation and industrious Use of it.

It is necessary in Gratitude, Ladys, before I conclude this, to acknowledge many Favour conferr'd upon my self and Family by your good Honoured Mother; whose prudent ordering her Family, tender Care of her Children, just Affection to one of the kindest of Husbands (whilst living) join'd with her Charity to the Poor, and courteous Demeanor to all Persons set her upon a Level (at least) with the most valuable Matrons, and render her Example highly worth the Imitation of others.

May your whole Family be long bless'd with her Health and Prosperity; may your selves live to be comfortably dispos'd of in the World and become the happy Instruments of increasing the Number of those who shall be Saved; and may I yet have the Honour and Satisfaction of being esteemed,

L A D Y S,

Your most obliged and devoted Servant,

THO. DYCHE

improving. If any be not formed in this manner, they are inserted in their proper places; as, give, given; bind, bound.

2. For the same Reason also, Comparatives in (er), and Superlatives in (est) are left out, those Endings being easy to be annexed, by Persons of the nearest Capacity; as kind, kinder, kindest; slow, slower, slowest. The Irregulars may be found in their order: and (e) also must be cut off; as, brave, braver, bravest.

3. By the leave of my good Friends, the Printers, and Correctors of the Press, I would propose, not to use many Letters in a Word. when fewer may do as well. Hence (ck) need not be together in the end of such borrow'd Words, as, concentric, Lyric, magnetic: but I retain it in all English Words for Antiquity's sake. One (l) may commonly serve at the End of a Word, as well as two; so I hope the Liberty I have taken that way may be pardonable. I think also, that (e) final may be left out, when it does not lengthen a syllable; as in doctrine, rapine, humane, handsome, &c. which may better and more expeditiously be written, doctrin, rapin, human, handlom.

4. 'Tis a good old English Closer of Nouns, Verbs and Adverbs; but I observe, 'tis customary to change it into (i) when any further ending is added; as, heavy, heavily, heavier, heaviest, heaviness. Yet a Verb keeps it to a Participle in (ing) only; as levy, levying, levied; bury, burying, burial, buried. Yet the Compounds of to keep (ie) as, crucifie, magnifie.

5. There are some Words sounded so differently from their Letters, that I think the best way would be

be to spell them by the Ear. For Instance, I approve these Words, Count, account, accountant, gage, gager, Lievtenant, skeptic, skeleton, rather than Compt, aecompt, accomptant, gauge, gauger, Lieutenant, sceptic, sceleton, as they are commonly written.

6. Latin Substantives in (-or) become English ones in (-our) ; tho' I think that (u) to be unnecessary, because, when the Word increases, it drops ; as humour, humorist, humorfom.

But to propose my single Opinion against the public Vogue, I must confess, is a hazardous Enterprize ; for Custom will bear a Man down, unless he find a good Number of Candid Friends to support him. To such I commit my Cause, so far as they shall think reasonable to defend it, and shall always be glad of their kind Admonitions ; but, for fear I may already have exceeded my Bounds, I shall offer no more Remarks at present.

The Peruser may only mind, that if there be no Accent over any Word, it is either a Monosyllable, and needs none, or else it belongs to the first Letter of the Word, which, if it be a Capital, cannot conveniently be accented in the Way of Printing.

The

Books printed for Richard Ware, &c.

The Fables of Phædrus, under the following Hands out. The Weakest goes to the Wall; Choose the Least of Evils; be Content in your Station; all cover, all lost; keep not too great Company; like Father, like Son; Honour looks not well in a Fool; insult not Persons in Misery; a Lyar is not believ'd, tho' he speaks Truth; what we despise most, may do us the most Service; nothing is more dangerous than a Flatterer; a just Punishment is reserved for the Slanderer; Folly is always attended with ill Consequences; the Unfortunate is insulted by every Rascal; always suspect the Generosity of Sharpers; the Covetous Man is his own Tormenter; let not great Men despise their Inferiors; some People pay dear for Jestings; Publick Misfortunes lie hardest on the Common People; Envy inseparable from Virtue; to do Good is the Way to find it; ridiculous for mean Persons to brag of great Things; a poor Freedom better than a rich Slavery; be not hasty to believe a Backbiter; both obliging and safe to be courteous; Riches entice Men to many Evils; nothing like plain Dealing; too much Modesty as bad as too little; the best Wisdom got at other Folks Charges; prejudiced Opinion spoils the Judgment; a vain Conceitedness ridiculed by all; Time passes away irrecoverably. Rendered into Familiar English, by Thomas Dyer, Schoolmaster at Stratford-Bow. Price bound One Shilling.

Also he selleth Mr. Basker's three large Bibles
